

From the Business Office:

We know that in order to effectively operate your program, you need to understand your financial position. You need to know the status of your budget, how much revenue you've received, and ultimately, what your remaining financial resources are. In the business office, we are here to ensure that you have this financial data in an accessible and understandable way. With over 300 sources of revenue and more than 35,000 processed payments, complex financial systems and excel spreadsheets alone no longer remain the most effective way to provide you with the timely and accurate financial data you need.

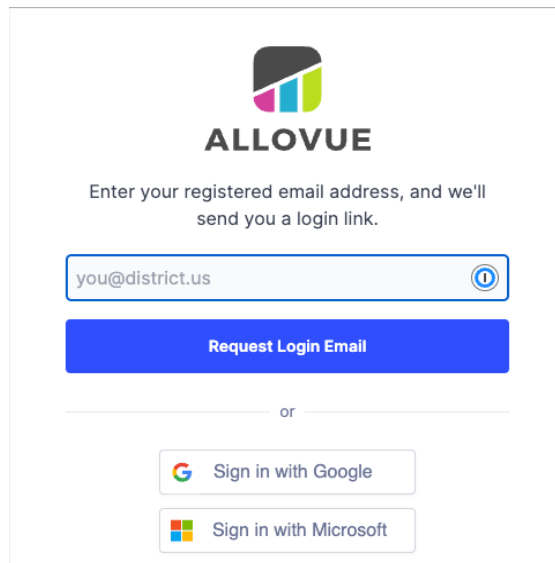

We are excited to add an additional tool, a resource management software, Manage. Manage will provide easily digestible financial data for all users, regardless of their financial savvy. Users will have access to timely, accurate data at their fingertips. This new software links directly to our financial system and updates daily. We believe that this tool will provide program leaders with a more comprehensive picture of each team's financial story. This team-based approach will allow for increased collaboration and proactive support. Manage grants us access to financial data in a way that we've not previously experienced at the ESD. By translating detailed and complex financial reports into easily digestible data, we anticipate that you will love this product as much as we do.
